

The job: Deliver several captions for each image to be used in a photography themed social media campaign.

Probably should have reduced my exposure.

An assignment in Alaska? I shutter to think about it.

Chiseled this out of my birdbath. Enjoyed the woodpecker selfies.

You said you wanted a high pixel count.

My first foray into sports photography. Crushed it.

You're beautiful without makeup, they said. The camera will love you.

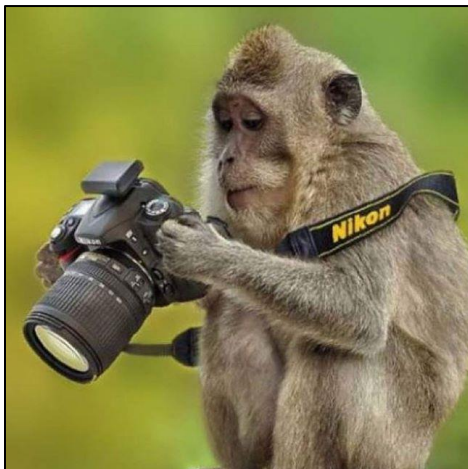

Don't point. Don't shoot.

Now let's do a goofy one. Unfurl your tongues.

Excuse me sir, but I'm trying to get real with this cute albino and you're ruining my game.

You guys distract him. I'll go for the eye.

I'm gonna need the wide-angle lens for this one.

A camera so user friendly, this monkey just changed your profile pic.

Don't move baby, your booty is breathtaking in this light.

Don't move. I'm deleting my deleted.

Risking life and limb for a blog no one reads.

Should have gone to dental school.

Bernard, what's my focal length here? How close is that grizzly? Bernard?

A week's worth of ice pics. Frozen in time.
